Part of what makes RGU great is this, aside from their keen intelligence, energy and drive, there is no one kind of RGU student. From students who are first in their families to attend college, our students bring nearly combination of background, identity, orientation and socioeconomic circumstances to RGU.

At the CENTER

RGU's ethnic community provide intellectual, social and cultural hubs for informal gatherings, as well as for meetings of volunteer student organisations and scheduled events. Here you'll find an added sense of family within RGU.

At RGU, you don't have to be an engineer to change the world through innovative design. Here students find that their ability to create influences their ability to imagine and that their visions lead to products that could have a genuine impact on society.

Resources and ESSENTIALS

Although their teaching and research activities take place in their department, they also benefit from their college's resources and are able to draw upon the expertise of its interdisciplinary community, as well as subject specialists in their department. The work of universities is a global endeavor. The discovery, interpretation, preservation and transmission of knowledge is carried out through interchanges between scholars, scientists and students across the world. The ultimate purpose of a university – wherever it may be located – is to build and critique a body of knowledge for the world as a whole.
